Dear Dr. Zwemer:

I have a portion of Gandhi's own story which I would be very happy if you would review briefly of course retaining it for your trouble. I presume you have it already but you might hand it to someone else. I know of no one who would give a better review than yourself. I thank you most sincerely.

Yours very truly,

My dear Dr Robinson,

Your letter of October 13th duly received. I did not reply until Sir Almeric Fitzroy had also come to hand. The volumes have reached me safely this morning. Many thanks.

I am glad that you enjoyed the reading of them. I thought you would. Yes, so far as I know, he is still living, though quite an old man. I had entirely forgotten that my name appeared in the book. I have looked up the reference. I cannot redall meeting the Duchess of St Albans at Lady Tweeddale's, though of course I must have done so. Lady Tweeddale was a member of my congregation, and I was constantly at her house, and all through the War met Sir Almeric there very often. That is how I came to be so interested in him.

You are quite right, his inner sympathy would be with the Roman rite, although a member of the Anglican Communion. Tory of the Tories, indeed Feudalist in his outlook, he was nevertheless very broad-minded in his sympathies, as indeed many such are.

Seeing that you have enjoyed these books I am sending you on two more to which I referred, J.Alfred Spender's "The Public Life". These are very different, but extremely fine. Spender was also a member of my congregation.

About Frank I am not sure. He has not really "cut the painter" at present. He wrote and told me that he was down to come to you if he starts out. Personally I hope he will, and particularly I shall be glad for him to have that week with you, for I believe you will enjoy each other.

With love to "Queen Anne", and indeed all of you,

Ever yours,

G.Campbell Morgan.
